A Hundred Thousand Welcomes

“Ceud Mille Failte” (A Hundred Thousand Welcomes) is the title for a project being run by SCIAF and the Scottish Refugee Council to collect a hundred thousand signatures for a petition expressing Scotland's welcoming of refugees and asylum seekers. Copies of the petition are available at the church door. Please take a copy and ask your friends and family members to sign it. Completed petition forms can be sent to SCIAF, 19 Park Circus, Glasgow G3 6BE before 20 March 2002. In a recent message on the Pastoral Care of Migrants and Refugees, Pope John Paul wrote: “The parish community can become a training ground of hospitality, a place where an exchange of experiences and gifts takes place. This cannot but foster a tranquil life together, preventing the risk of tension with immigrants who bring other religious beliefs with themselves. Everyday, in many parts of the world, migrants, refugees and displaced people turn to Catholic organizations and parishes in search of support, and they are welcomed irrespective of cultural or religious affiliation. The service of charity, which Christians are always called to carry out, cannot be limited to the mere distribution of humanitarian aid. In this way, new pastoral situations arise, which the Church community cannot fail to take into consideration. It is the task of its members to look for appropriate occasions to share with those who are welcomed the gift of the revelation of God who is Love, who “so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son” (John 3:16).”
